

Library & Special Collections

Thousands of researchers blaze their own trail through the historic landscape each year with the assistance of the Society's research facilities. Here genealogists can trace an ancestor's path aided by family histories, census, church, and cemetery records, family Bibles, and land ownership and military service records.

In addition, the Society's Special Collections house hundreds of thousands of manuscripts, photographs, maps, rare books, oral histories, pioneer accounts, diaries, albums, personal recollections, and more—all helping researchers come face-to-face with Kentucky's distinctive heritage.

Publications

The Society publishes books and periodicals that meet the needs of genealogists, historians, and scholars alike. The publications program produces two quarterlies: The Register, a journal of scholarly research in Kentucky history, and Kentucky Ancestors, a genealogical magazine providing statewide coverage for family history researchers. The Society also publishes The Chronicle, a membership newsletter offering information on Society events, exhibits, and programs.

The Library and Special Collections facilities contain the stories of Kentuckians and their families, from the 1700s to the present. Researchers have access to hundreds of thousands of books, records, and photographs.

Education

Every year thousands of people travel to Frankfort from all across America for hands-on tours, interactive exhibits, touch carts, historic character reenactments, family workshops, theatrical presentations, symposia, and festivals that celebrate Kentucky's history. In addition, the education program offers Kentucky history curriculum materials to teachers for use in their classrooms. The Society's outreach programs help people from Ashland to Paducah discover Kentucky's unique past. These programs include the Kentucky Junior Historical Society, Museums To Go, and Historical Highway Markers. Grant and technical assistance activities sponsored by the Folklife, Local History, and Oral History programs give citizens the tools to document and present their own history.

Mary and Joseph's five children, all born in Marion County, were Peter (b. 1870), John L. (b. 1873), William Tyler (b. 1875, d. 17 June 1947, Marion County, Ky., m. Lettie Samuel Devine), Sarah Bridget "Sallie" (b. 21 February 1877, d. 29 December 1942, Valley Station, Jefferson County, m. Archie Bernard Downs), and Monroe (b. 1881).

James Harrison Lyons Sr.

James Harrison Lyons Sr. (b. 1822, Washington County, d. 1 May 1899, Marion County),³¹ a son of Ann "Nancy" Alvey and Richard Lyons I, married Elizabeth "Betsy" Thompson (b. 1826, Washington County, d. after 1900), on 9 July 1850, Marion County, a daughter of John Barton Thompson II and Susan Elizabeth Mattingly.

James and Betsy's six children, all born in Marion County, were John Austin (b. 16 June 1851, m. Mary Elizabeth "Bettie" Brady), William Henry (b. 11 December 1853, d. 10 February 1936, Union County, m. Amada Evaline "Eva" Alvey), Mary Ellen (b. 20 September 1856, d. 12 November 1930, Louisville, Jefferson County, m. John Bernardi), Anna B. (b. 1859, m. Joseph J. Stockton), Thomas Marion (b.

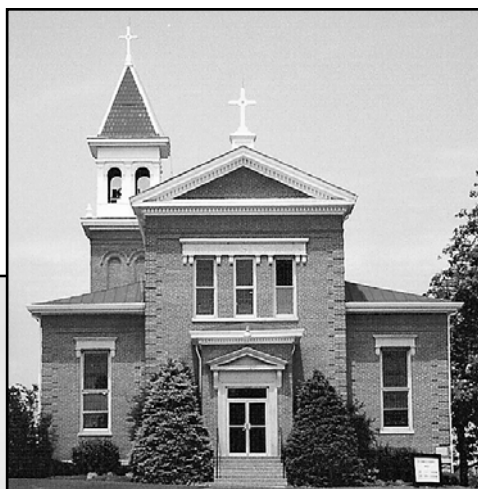

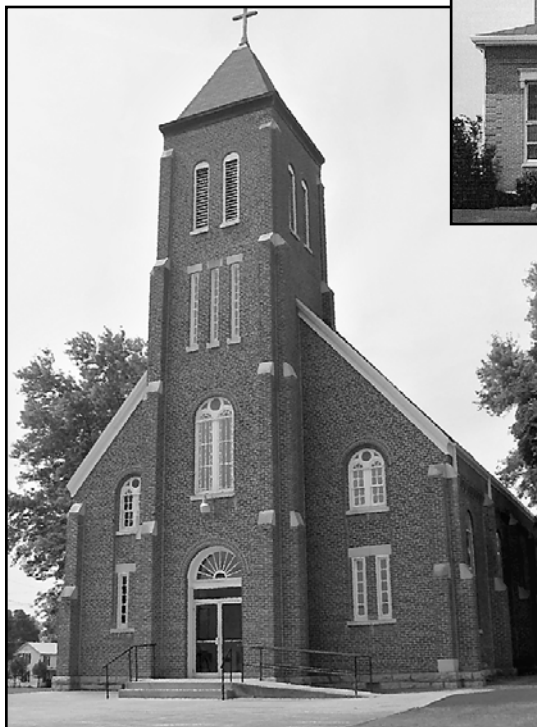

11 September 1860), and James Harrison Jr. (b. 22 August 1864).

John Lyons

John Lyons (b. 10 August 1825, Washington County, d. 16 September 1909, Union County), a son of Ann "Nancy" Alvey and Richard Lyons I, married Elizabeth Ann "Eliza" Alvey (b. 3 July 1835, Marion County, d. 1895, Union County), a daughter of Charles Alvey and Mary Elizabeth "Betsy" Ray, on 14 February 1854 in Marion County.³²

John and Eliza's six children, all born in Marion County, were Mary Elizabeth (b. 5 February 1855, d. about 1894, m. Samuel Washington Gregory), Amanda Jane "Mandy" (b. 22 September 1857, Raywick, Marion County, d. 24 December 1925, Union County, m. William Preston Crowds), John Thomas (b. 5 December 1863, d. 15 July 1929, Union County),³³ Richard Henry (b. 29 January 1865, Raywick, Marion County, d. 31 July 1935, Union County, m. Anna Benita Thompson), Martha Ann "Mattie" (11 June 1870, d. 10 September 1962, Louisville, Jefferson County, m. George Thomas Mills), William Virgil (b. 20 August 1877, d. 21 January 1898, Union County).

John Basil Alvey

John Basil Alvey (b. 1822 Washington County, d. before 1900, Ind.), a son of John Henry Alvey Jr. and Elizabeth "Betsy" Blair, married Mary Ann Thompson (b. September 1825, Washington County, d. after 1900, Ark.) (25),³⁴ a daughter of John Barton Thompson II and Susan Elizabeth Mattingly, about 1850 in Marion County.

John and Betsy's five known children were Jane (b. 25 July 1853, St. Mary's, Marion County, d. after 2 November 1854, St. Mary's, Marion County), Susan Alice "Allie" (b. 3 March 1856, St. Mary's, Marion County, m. Henry G. Haines), John Henry "Jack" (b. 16 March 1859, St. Mary's, Marion County, d. 26 March 1934, Van Buren, Crawford County, Ark., m. Amanda Lavinia "Nell" Stevenson), Thomas N. (b. about 24 November 1861, Marion County), and William Preston (b. 19 February 1864, Raywick, Marion County).

Susan Mary Alvey

Susan Mary Alvey (b. 27 November 1826, Washington County, d. 9 December 1880, Marion County), a daughter of John Henry Alvey Jr. and Elizabeth "Betsy" Blair, married Bennett Alvey (b. 13 November 1826, Washington County), a son of Jesse Alvey Sr. and Sarah Ann "Sally" Blair, about 1850 in Marion County.

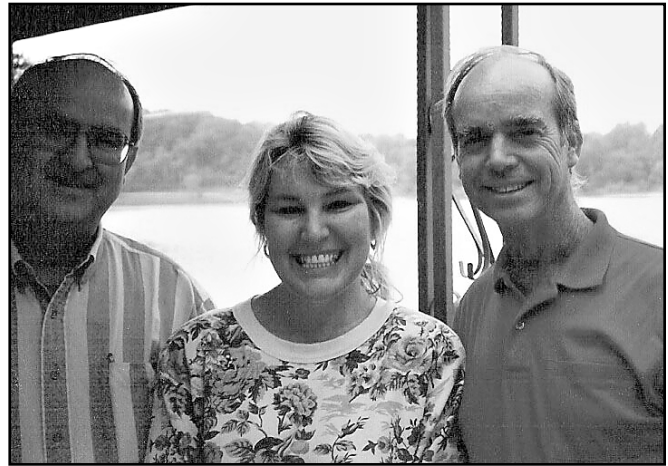

See the children of Susan and Bennett listed under the family of Bennett Alvey.

1 John Henry Alvey Sr. is mentioned as a son and heir in the 1803 St. Mary's County, Md., will of his father, Jesse Alvey. The name John Henry Sr. is based on the listing of his son John Henry Jr. as Henry Jr. in the 1823 Washington County tax list. Henry Alvey Jr.'s father was listed as John.

2 Father John Lyons, a Roman Catholic priest of the area from the 1950s through the 1970s, abstracted and compiled the registers of many churches in Washington and Marion counties. They included many Alveys and are in the libraries of the Filson Historical Society in Louisville and the Kentucky Historical Society in Frankfort.

3 The marriage date for John Henry Alvey Sr. and Elizabeth Williams was obtained from D.L. Downs, a direct descendant, based on his family lore. I have never been able to confirm or verify this date from any known record available in St. Mary's County, Md.

4 Mary Alvey Thompson was buried in St. Charles Borromeo Catholic Cemetery in St. Mary's, Marion County. For Mary and Charles' marriage record, see Margaret Clark

Alvey series author Robert Lee Alvey Sr. posed with Mary Catherine (Alvey) Jordan and Earl Alvey at St. Francis Xavier Catholic Cemetery, in Raywick, Marion County, in 1996. Mary Jordan lives in Louisville, Earl in Las Vegas, and Robert lives in Laguna Niguel, Calif. Jordan is a g-g-g-g-granddaughter of John Henry Alvey Sr., which makes her a first cousin several times removed to Robert and Earl.

Knox County School Census, 1877

School censuses are important documents because they often provide proof of family relationship. Many were also produced annually, allowing researchers to gather information between U.S. census years. One of the school censuses in the KHS collection is a microfilm roll of one taken in Knox County in 1900. It is particularly valuable because it helps document students in the period of the 1890 census, which was subsequently lost. For example, a child born in 1881 would not appear in an available U.S. census until 1900, when he or she would be about age 19. No changes have been made to original text, with the exception of converting months to modern abbreviation rules. Notes appear in parentheses.

The Alex Sevier mentioned in the census (see page 166) was Alexander Sevier (b. 11 September 1847, Clay County, d. 4 September 1928, Barbourville, Knox County), a son of John Rector Sevier and Nancy Ewing, who married Nancy Sawyer (b. 30 October 1861, Knox County), a daughter of William Wallace Sawyer and Marena Kenner, on 13 December 1883.

The couple's children were Cora Bales (b. 13 September 1884), Alexander Ewing (b. 1 November 1886, d. 6 December 1906), Marena (b. 6 February 1889, Barbourville, m. William Joseph Madden), and John Rector II (b. 23 October 1891, Barbourville, d. 14 April 1953, Louisville, m. 1. Ruth Hamilton, 2. Irene Hamilton).

Jacob and Susan Garr and Their Family

Within the Plainview Apartments development, along Whetstone Way in eastern Jefferson County, there is stone-walled, 19th-Century family graveyard. Like many similar ones all across the state, the graveyard has been vandalized. There is evidence of a large monument, though no obelisk or other large-scale stone is present. Two of the four standing stones have been placed in concrete. Plastic flowers can be seen on the ground. The transition of the surname spelling from Gaar to Garr is reflected in Susan's stone, with the spelling "Gaar" and those of her children, whose stones are spelled "Garr."

Jacob Gaar (b. 20 March 1782, Culpeper County, Va., d. 28 October 1854, Jefferson County, Ky.), a son of Andrew Gaar and Christina Wilhoit, married his double first cousin Susan Gaar (b. 3 February 1781, Madison County, Va., d. 7 July 1861, Jefferson County, Ky.), a daughter of John Gaar and

Susan Garr (b. 3 February 1781, Madison County, Va., d. 7 July 1861, Jefferson County, Ky.) was her husband's double first cousin, a daughter of John Gaar and Margaret Wilhoit. Susan and Jacob shared the same maternal and paternal grandparents, Lorenz Gaar and Dorothea Blankenbaker and Johann Christian Willheit and Margaret "Peggy" Walburga Weaver. They were married on 18 June 1812 in Madison County, Va., and had at least seven children.

Margaret Wilhoit, on 18 June 1812 in Madison County, Va.¹

In 1832, Jacob and a cousin, John Fisher Gaar, left Madison County in “a little two-horse wagon” for Kentucky. After four weeks, the men arrived in eastern Jefferson County, Ky., where Jacob found a 300-acre tract he liked well enough to purchase.²

Bringing his family to their new home, Gaar began building a prosperous farm. He appears on the 1850 census as 68 years old, born in Virginia, with a real estate value of $3,500. Susan was 66, born in Virginia. The children in the household were Horace, 18 (b. Ky.); N.H. 25 (b. Va.), and J.O., 21 (b. Va.), all listed as farmers.

In the 1852 Jefferson County tax list, Garr owned four tracts of land: 233 acres along Beargrass Creek (his residence) valued at $9,000; 370 acres along the Ohio River valued at $18,000, 104 acres along Pope Lick valued at $1,600; and 43 acres along Beargrass

Creek valued at $850. He was a white male over 21 with six slaves over 16 (15 total) valued at $4,000. He owned 11 horses and mares, three mules valued at $120, 13 head of cattle valued at $80, and 37 hogs over six months old. Certainly well-to-do, Garr also was the owner of one “pleasure carriage or barouche” and one “silver lever” watch, for which he was taxed. The total value of his possessions was $34,100, which made him by far the wealthiest man in his immediate vicinity.³

The children of Jacob and Susan, all born in Madison County, Va., were Joseph Wilhoit (b. 13 July 1814, m. Paulina Elizabeth Allen), Alfred Gallatin (b. 3 June 1816), Oliver Perry (b. 14 April 1818, m. 1. Margaret Amelia Head, 2. Josephine Sylvia Rich)⁴, Benjamin Louis (b. 17 August 1820, d. 27 October 1887, m. Kazia Russell), Newton Hamilton (b. 2 August 1825, m. Berilla Ann Yager), James Osborne (b. 15 October 1828), and Horace Stringfellow (b. 7 April 1832, m. 1. Eliza Jane Yager, 2. Margaret Elizabeth Byrne).

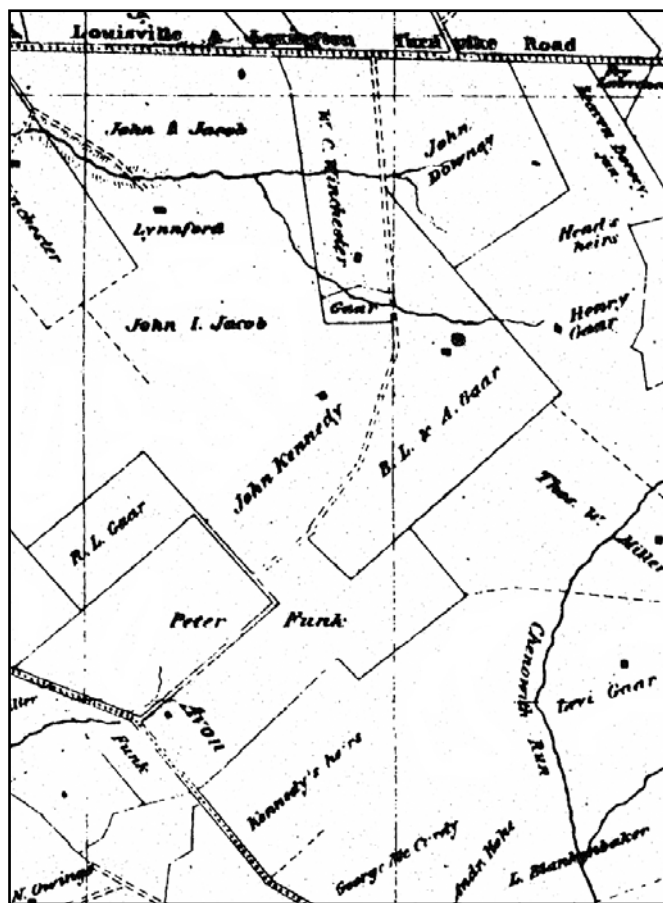

Jacob's three-page, legalistic will divided his property among his six living sons. Joseph, Oliver, Newton, and Horace each received a fourth of Jacob's 475 acres along the Ohio River (“four miles below Louisville”) which had been conveyed “more than twenty years ago” by Thomas Garland. Joseph and Newton received the portion that included the house in which each resided.⁵

Benjamin and Alfred split the 300-acre farm “near the Shelbyville Turnpike road about Ten miles from Louisville” and 104 ½ acres “called the Abell tract” at the headwaters of Pope Lick and “Chenoweth's Run,” which was “about 2 ½ miles eastwardly from my home place.”

Benjamin also inherited his father's house, but the two brothers' property was to be made equal in value, including land and improvements. The valuation was to be made by “four discreet citizens of Jefferson County,” residents of Jacob's neighborhood, who would value the property and divided it into lots for each son.

Alfred and Benjamin could retain the land jointly, but neither could sell to anyone outside the family without the consent of “such of my sons as said land may adjoin,” and each was to have “convenient and necessary access and outlet” to his land.

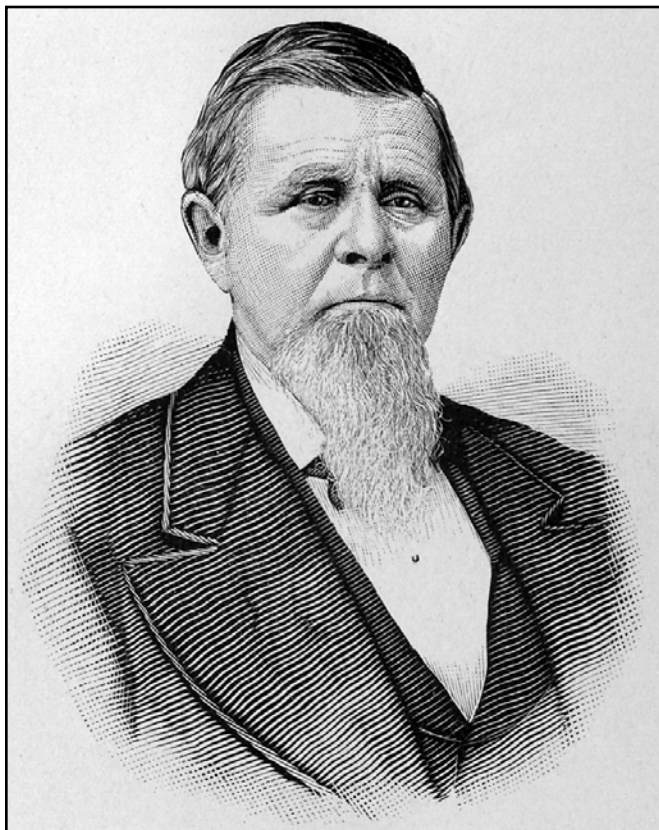

In the will Jacob also said: “I give my negro man

G.T. Bergmann map, 1858

G.T. Bergmann's 1858 map of Jefferson County shows Jacob Garr's land in the joint possession of his sons Alfred and Benjamin L. Garr. Other kinsmen, including Levi, R.L., and Henry Garr are also shown.

History of the Ohio Falls Counties

John Fisher Garr, above, came to Kentucky with his cousin Jacob Garr in 1832. They left Madison County, Va., in “a little two-horse wagon” and arrived in Jefferson County, Ky., four weeks later. John Fisher Garr was a first cousin once removed of Jacob Garr and a nephew of Jacob Garr’s wife, Susan Garr. John Fisher Garr settled on land in the “Cane Run precinct” of southwestern Jefferson County, near the 475 acres inherited by Jacob’s sons Joseph, Oliver, Newton, and Horace.

Eli to that one of my sons that he shall elect to live with upon the condition however; that the one so elected shall agree to take him as his slave and shall clothe and feed him well and shall pay to said Eli Fifty dollars per year for his labor till he is sixty years old—after that to be treated as other slaves.”

All the sons were executors of Jacob’s will. They could elect one administrator, provided he would not be compensated for the service. The will was signed on June 22, 1854, in the presence of George A. Caldwell, Isaac Caldwell, and “Ch. I. Meng,” and was probated on Oct. 30.

1 Jacob and Susan’s fathers, Andrew and John Gaar, respectively, married sisters Christina and Margaret Wilhoit. They shared the same maternal and paternal grandparents, Lorenz Gaar and Dorothea Blankenbaker and Johann Christian Willheit and Margaret “Peggy” Walburga Weaver.

2 History of the Ohio Falls Cities and Their Counties (Cleveland, 1882), p. 63. John Fisher Gaar was Jacob’s first cousin, once removed, a son of Jacob’s cousin Aaron Gaar (b. 20 January 1773, Va., d. 18 December 1804). Jacob and Aaron were grandsons of Lorenz Gar (b. 29 November 1716, Ilenschwang, Bavaria, d. 1753, Culpeper County, Va.) and Dorothea/Dorothy Blankenbaker (b. 11 February 1729-30, Madison County, Va.). John Fisher Gaar purchased land along Cane Run in southwestern Jefferson County, near land eventually owned by Jacob’s sons Joseph, Oliver, Newton, and Horace.

4 Jefferson County, Va.-Ky., Early Marriages, Book 3 (June 1837-May 10, 1842) (Louisville: Filson Club publication, 1941), p. 107. Oliver Perry Gaar married Margaret A. Head on 9 September 1841. She was a daughter of Margaret N. Head, who gave consent for the marriage in writing.

Corinth Deposit Bank, Grant County, Check Book No. 1, 1890

(Part Eight)

Because of the loss of the 1890 federal census, records from the decade of the 1890s are important genealogical sources. The following record of the Corinth Deposit Bank lists customers and payees beginning with the bank's founding. Dr. W.H. Daugherty—a prominent local landowner—served as first president of the bank, as well as a founding director. The record, along with others, was donated to the Kentucky Historical Society in 1999 by Mr. Giff Kollhoff of Corinth. It is in the possession of the KHS Special Collections department. For more information, contact Archivist Lynne Hollingsworth at (502) 564-1792 or via e-mail at: Lynne.Hollingsworth@mail.state.ky.us. The present 6th-class city of Corinth, named for the local Corinth Christian Church, was founded on the site of an old stagecoach stop. A post office was established there on October 22, 1868. The city was incorporated in 1878. Notes appear in parentheses. No changes have been made to original text, with the exception of the deletion of check numbers and daily totals and the addition of modern punctuation. Part Seven appeared in Volume 39, Number 1.

Tombstone Inscriptions, Jefferson County

The following appeared in Volume 27 of the Register of the Kentucky Historical Society in January 1929. The transcriptions were done by Alice E. Trabue, then chairwoman of historical research for the Colonial Dames Society. Trabue (b. Frankfort, Ky., d. 16 August 1961, Louisville) was author of the book A Corner in Celebrities, which influenced the decision to save several historic homes in downtown Frankfort. She was an honorary vice president of the Kentucky Historical Society in the 1920s and 1930s. Though the information may not appear exactly as it did on the tombstones, no changes have been made to the original Register text.

him to enlist; why he left his unit only to return eight months later.

After the war, there were various commercial offerings appealing to the emotions and memories of veterans and their families. One such effort was a "Soldiers' Memorial" poster, which listed the members and history of the 20th Kentucky Infantry, also known as the Mercer County Wildcats.

A family photograph was taken of the Cook family around 1888, complete with a vacant chair and a photograph of their missing son and brother. The vacant chair was a common mourning expression for families who lost loved-ones in the war. It came from the song The Vacant Chair or We Shall Meet, But We Shall Miss Him, written at Thanksgiving 1861.

A personal observation about the photograph is the striking resemblance of John Stephen Cook and his father. Also, the sad expression on his mother's face, surely reflecting painful memories of her son's death, as well as her own poor health at the time.

My mother, Lucy Mitchell Voris Curpen, was born in 1891 and was named for her grandmother, Lucy Mitchell Jenkins Cook, at her request. The grandmother burned to death shortly thereafter when she fell asleep near a fireplace while holding a newspaper.

Strother Moses Cook Jr. served as a missionary in Africa, and died at Lagos, West Africa, in 1907.

The History of Kentucky Baptists, which was published in 1886, described Strother Moses Cook Sr. as "perhaps the oldest living minister in South District Association." Spencer said "He walks erect, appears to enjoy good health, and seems to be as much interested in the cause of the Redeemer, as in the days of his youth."

Book Notes

*Books on Kentucky genealogy and history

Sims Index to Land Grants In West Virginia. (1952. Reprint 2003. Pp. 866. Indexed. Hardcover, $50, plus $3.50 postage and handling. Order from Genealogical Publishing Co. Inc., 1001 N. Calvert Street, Baltimore, MD 21202-3897, or via the Internet at: GenealogyBookShop.com.)

Land records comprise one of the most important sources for early American genealogical research, since sometimes they are the only records that can place an individual in a particular place at a particular time. For this reason Sims Index to Land Grants in West Virginia is an important source for anyone researching their early Virginia/West Virginia ancestors. This work is a facsimile reprint of the 1952 book, which serves as a comprehensive guide to pre-1900 land records in West Virginia (which until 1863 was part of the Commonwealth of Virginia). It lists land grants that were made by Lord Fairfax prior to the creation of the Virginia Land Office in 1779, as well as those issued by the Commonwealth of Virginia for land now located in West Virginia, and by the state of West Virginia under its first constitution. The information was compiled by Edgar Sims, once state auditor of West Virginia, from copies of land grants filed in his office. More than 50,000 entries are included, each containing the name of the grantee, amount of acreage, location and date of grant, and the grant book and page numbers. Sims meticulously examined each record to ensure that the spellings of the names of grantees, location, and descriptions of tracts were accurate, and that any variations of spellings of grantees' names were also indexed or noted. Records are listed for Barbour, Berkeley, Boone, Braxton, Brooke, Cabell, Calhoun, Clay, Doddridge, Fayette, Gilmer, Grant, Greenbrier, Hampshire, Hancock, Hardy, Harrison, Jackson, Jefferson, Kanawha, Lewis, Logan, Marion, Marshall, Mason, McDowell, Mercer, Monongalia, Monroe, Morgan, Nicholas, Ohio, Pendleton, Pleasants, Pocahontas, Preston, Putnam, Raleigh, Randolph, Ritchie, Roane, Taylor, Tucker, Tyler, Uphur, Wayne, Webster, Wetzel, Wirt, Wood, and Wyoming counties, West Virginia, as well as for the portions of Augusta, Bath, Botetourt, Frederick, Montgomery, Russell, Tazewell, and Wythe counties, Virginia, that were used in the formation of West Virginia.

In a great many cases the land grants indexed here pre-date the earliest extant census records or supplement existing census records, and are thus indispensable for finding individuals who lived in the area that later became West Virginia. This reprint also includes the 16-page supplement of 1956 covering grants of Fincastle, Giles, and Rockingham counties.

Ireland: 1841/51 Census Abstracts (Northern Ireland). By Josephine Masterson. (1999. Pp. 538. Hardcover, $50, plus $3.50 postage and handling. Order from Genealogical Publishing Co. Inc., 1001 N. Calvert Street, Baltimore, MD 21202-3897, or via the Internet at: GenealogyBookShop.com.)

The earliest census available for all of Ireland is for the year 1901, earlier censuses having been destroyed in the fire of 1922 at the Public Record Office in Dublin. This work is the nearest thing there is to a partial reconstruction of the 1841 and 1851 censuses of Northern Ireland. The story behind this reconstruction is not without interest. The Old Age Pension Act was introduced in 1908, but as the civil registration of births, marriages, and deaths was not begun in Ireland until 1864, birth certificates were not available for persons of eligible age (70 years). For persons applying to the local Pensions Office without proof of age, the pension officer sent particulars of the claimant to be checked in the 1841 and 1851 censuses held at the Public Record Office in Dublin. Details were recorded by the search officer and returned to the Pensions Office. Significantly, this checking was completed before the Public Record Office fire of 1922!

The Old Age Pension search summaries for Northern Ireland, bound in books and held in Belfast, cover the counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, and Tyrone. In some cases a fairly complete family census record was written in the summary book, and it is from these summary books that this present series of census abstracts derives. (Most of the Old Age Pension records contain only brief notes recording whether or not a census record was found for the applicant and whether the age given by the applicant matched the census information.) Only a fraction of the population is covered by these summary book abstracts, wherein altogether a total of 23,000 persons are identified. Admittedly, this is but a small part of the whole, but it is nonetheless an extremely important body of genealogical data—previously thought unavailable! Generally speaking, the abstracts contain the following information: (1) the name of the head of household; (2) often his marriage date; (3) the wife's name (and sometimes her maiden name); (4) the place of residence for that year; (5) names of children and their ages; (6) names of other members of the family living in the household; and (7) persons having died in the ten years previous to the census. Entries are in alphabetical order and are cross-indexed for relatives, lodgers, visitors, and servants. There are also cross-indexes for married and maiden names of daughters and wives. In addition to the census abstracts taken from the summary books found in the Old Age Pension records, this work also contains census fragments and miscellaneous census data found in both the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland (Belfast) and the National Archives in Dublin. So all is not lost after all, and thanks to the diligence of Mrs. Masterson, we have an unexpectedly powerful tool for filling in gaps in mid-19th-century Irish census records!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Kentucky Historical Society will hold a free Beginning Genealogy seminar and workshop on Sunday, March 20, 2005. Hosted by Kentucky Ancestors editor Tom Stephens, the event will include information about first steps in genealogical research and their associated records, along with sources available at historical society facilities. Refreshments and time for research will be included. The event is for adults, and pre-registration is required. Participants should bring any information they have gathered about their family's history. Contact Joanie DiMartino, toll-free, at 1-877-444-7867, extension 4467.

The Kentucky Historical Society and Kentucky Genealogical Society will hold a Land Records Seminar on Saturday, June 11, 2005. Smith, Waller, Preston

I am trying to verify the parents of Mildred Smith (b. 1747, Va., d. 1803, Ky.), who married Rev. William Edmund Waller in 1769 in Virginia. The couple came to Bryan Station, Fayette County, in 1785 and moved to Buck Creek, Shelby County, in 1798. According to some sources, the church established at Buck Creek in 1799 was on land owned by Mildred's father. Was he Francis Smith and, if so, which Francis Smith? I have a source that says the correct Francis had a connection with the Preston family. Any help would be appreciated.

You're Invited ...

... to become a member of the Kentucky Historical Society

Since 1965, Kentucky Ancestors has preserved the heritage of our forebears through the publication of records and research concerning early Kentucky families. Recognizing the importance of this area of our history, the Society has provided Ancestors to its thousands of members across the nation and beyond who unfailingly contribute to and support the genealogical quarterly.

You are cordially invited to join the Society and aid us in the continued pursuit of Kentucky ancestors. As a member, you can participate in the preservation of your own Kentucky family history by submitting information about and photographs of your ancestors. Membership is open to anyone interested in the history of Kentucky. To join, please contact:
